

SEMI-WEEKLY INTERIOR JOURNAL.

VOL. XXII.

STANFORD, KY., FRIDAY, APRIL 20, 1894.

NO. 15

WILLIAMSBURG, WHITLEY COUNTY.

—The academy girls gave an entertainment last Friday evening.
—The republican candidates had a speaking at East Tenn., last Saturday.
—The advertising car of Forepaugh's show was here Tuesday advertising his circus for May Sch.
—Mr. George McGinnis and wife, of Memphis, Tenn., were here to attend the Perkins-O'Mara wedding.
—Mrs. Moore, mother of Mr. M. A. Moore, is very sick and as she is so old she is not expected to recover.
—Benj. C. Chapin gave a lecture at the Congregational church last Monday night. The house was filled with people and everyone enjoyed hearing Mr. Chapin very much.
—Judge Sumner appointed K. D. Perkins and S. L. Pence to appear before the State board of equalization. They went down last week but have not heard what the board has done yet.
—The meeting still continues at the M. E. church with several visiting pastors present. Rev. L. L. Pickett left Monday. Mrs. J. M. Mahan, who has been very sick is improving.
—Dr. P. A. Pennington spent Sunday in London. Dr. A. Gatlin and Judge Finley are in Louisville this week. Mr. G. A. Denham took his son Samuel to Gettysburg to attend school. Miss Maggie Craig was called home last Saturday on account of the serious illness of her mother, who lives near Grays Station.
—The base ball season was opened at the fair grounds last Saturday by two local teams. On Sunday some of our boys thought they would have a little game but Marshal Wagner interfered and the boys promised Judge Tye they would not break the Sabbath any more if he would let them off this time, which he did.
—Miss Fannie O'Mara, daughter of Col. Thomas O'Mara, and Mr. William Perkins, member of the firm of Mahan & Co., were married at the bride's home last Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock. The couple left immediately for Cincinnati where they will spend a few days and then visit relatives of the bride at Hustonville.

—Mr. W. R. Durham has gone to Pennsylvania to inspect the carriage factory, which a company has been organized at this place to buy. If the machinery, &c., prove to be what the people expect a building will be begun at once and in a few months Williamsburg will be prepared to furnish the Southern States with the finest quality of carriages and two wheeled carts.
—Wednesday evening last Squire Ike Johnson shot Wm. Jones at his home about 10 miles east of here. It was reported here the next day that Jones was dead but that proved untrue and the prospects are he will recover. Jones had been to intimate with Johnson's daughter and presided in going with her when her father objected. That evening Jones went to Johnson's home and was talking to the young lady when Johnson ordered him to leave, some words were passed and Johnson shot Jones with a shot gun loaded with No. 2 shot.

DANVILLE, BOYLE COUNTY.

(Advocate.)
—Mr. E. C. Gaines, of Lincoln, the original discoverer of the genuine Count of Monte Cristo, was in town to day.
—In answer to a pressing popular demand, the tuncful opera, The Pirates of Penzance, will be repeated at the Danville Opera House on the evening of the 8th of June.
—Wyatt Hughes claims the boss mule colt of the season—three feet eight inches when foaled. E. W. Lee's brood mare, Tennessee, foaled twin colts to Imp. Deceiver, but the larger one died.
—Mr. A. B. Robertson, while taking a spin on his bicycle yesterday afternoon, was thrown to the road and received a sprain on the left arm, which will keep him indoors for several days.
—Bishop T. U. Dudley has consented to visit our city on Wednesday, May 30th, and will deliver, on the evening of that day, beginning at eight o'clock, at the Opera House, his famous lecture, entitled "The Historic Christ."

—Those in favor of the licensed saloon system at Junction City are preparing to make a fight for the enjoyment of their desires. An endeavor will be made to get two vacancies in the city council filled with gentlemen favorable to saloons, and then secure from the council the right to operate them. Judge Sautley's decision in the Rowland case has inspired the saloonists with hope.
—About 35 of those who professed Christianity during the late series of meetings at the Methodist church were formally received into fellowship Sunday morning by the pastor, Rev. W. E. Taylor. The series of special union service which have been conducted by the First and Second Presbyterian churches for two weeks past, were brought to a close last night, after accomplishing great good. A number of additions were made to both congregations.

—The terms of 14 democratic senators and 16 republicans expire March 4th next.

LANCASTER, CARRARO COUNTY.

—About 12 or 13 Lancaster "Kay Pears" will go to Stanford tonight to assist in making a lot of candidates.
—Billy Wearen came over from Stanford Tuesday on his bicycle. He claims to have made the trip in 15 minutes.
—Messrs. W. S. O'Neal, John S. Gill, L. F. Hubble, Geo. M. Patterson are attending the district meeting of the W. C. T. U. at Kirksville this week.
—Col. Copeland, a noted lecturer, will deliver one of his famous lectures at the court-house next Monday evening. As it is to be given under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society, a good crowd will attend.
—The new stock law is certainly a good one. It has encouraged citizens to plant shade trees and improve the side walks all over town. Some have removed their front fences entirely and it adds greatly to the beauty of the yards.
—Dr. Tom Hood, of Lexington, is here visiting his sister. Mr. Brown Cogar has returned from Harrodsburg. Circuit Clerk Mason sends word back from Chicago that his brother George is much better and is out of danger.
—Dr. Kinnaird, president of the water company, tells us that they will advertise this week for bids on building the power house. It is to be located between the flour mills and old planing mill and will be about 60x90 feet, built of brick and one story high. This begins to look like business. The company is thinking of boring an artesian well near the depot and if successful they will not have to go to the river for their supply of water.

BRODHEAD, ROCKCASTLE COUNTY.

—Mr. James McKinzie and wife, of Mt. Vernon, visited Bro. Pike and family. Mrs. Oris Bowers was in town Monday. Dr. J. G. Carpenter, of Stanford, paid our town a flying visit on his way to Quail. Mr. Thomas Cherry is putting this week in at Cincinnati. Mr. W. B. Ray, of Lebanon, is here in the interest of his spoke business. Mr. A. E. Albright has about closed a contract and secured the service of a second party to adorn the interior of his new and beautiful dwelling. Mr. R. S. Martin went to Junction City this week.
—The grim monster, death, has been visiting our community. He came to the home of Mr. Nathan DeFord in the form of consumption, and took from that humble home the wife and mother, leaving a broken hearted husband and four little children to mourn her loss. He next visited the home of Mr. Stephen Commons, and in the form of dropsy of the heart, robbed that home of the husband and father, leaving a wife and a few little children to make their way through this world the best they can. And then again his power and effects have been felt and seen in the form of alcoholic liquors, and in a mysterious way taken from this life a young man by the name of John Nordyke, whose body was found about 14 miles from here by a lady, an account of which you had Tuesday. The coroner's jury found that he had been dead ever since the last of February and that his death probably resulted from intoxicating liquors.

HUBBLE.

—Farmers are availing themselves of this nice corn planting weather. W. R. Watson has moved to his farm near here. We are glad to welcome him and his good wife among us. Miss Lizzie Simpson has returned to her home at Marksburg, after a visit among friends here. Some tins, mumps and sore eyes, have been reported in this community. Mr. Bob McCauley has rented the Blackberry place of S. M. Spoonamore, and will move soon. Call and see our local wool dealer before selling elsewhere. A. C. Carman is able to be out again. Gentry Bros. have sold two car loads of hay delivered in Stanford at 45c. J. J. Walker has been to escort the remains of his esteemed friend, Elder J. C. Frank to his last resting place in Flemingsburg. Mrs. Chris Engelman is in from Missouri visiting relatives and friends.
—Miss Pollard reiterates that she will not go on the stage. She says she has been offered all the way from $50 to $1,000 a night, but she will not go on the stage, lecture or join an opera company. Said she: "I will try to take up a new life. I shall study as I have never studied before, and then when I am equipped for it I shall take up writing and always over a nom de plume. I realize that I have forfeited my right to friends, but by giving the world all of my abhorrent secrets I have thrown them off myself, and now I can hope to do my work without having it stamped with them, and perhaps by my work I shall be able to accomplish a little good in the world, after all."

To produce Webster's International Dictionary required the diligent toil of 100 scholars of world wide reputation, for the full period of 10 years. This work made changes in the text of the Unabridged in 87,000 instances and recognizes about 100,000 words which have come into usage in the last 30 years in this country.

CHURCH AFFAIRS.

—Elder J. H. Hoff will preach at the Baptist church at Hustonville next Sunday, 22nd, at 11 A. M.
—There are men who count on getting to heaven because they sometimes give away an old coat.
—The State Convention of The King's Daughters and Sons will be held in Owensboro, April 26-27.
—There were 248 professions of religion and 206 additions to the fellowship of the Ardmore church, Missouri, as the result of a Baptist meeting.
—Rev. Sanford M. Logan, of Virginia, will preach at the Presbyterian church next Sunday morning and evening. He is a son of Dr. J. V. Logan, of Central University.
—Evangelist Fide's meeting at Mayeville closed with 530 conversions. Nearly all the town followed him to the depot and a regular prayer meeting was held on the platform.
—According to the Baptist Seminary catalogue there have been 267 matriculations this term against 260 last year. Twenty-eight States, District of Columbia, Canada, England, Manitoba and Germany are represented.
—The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, will meet in Memphis, May 2, and will consist of 311 members, of whom nearly one-half are laymen. It is proposed to cut down the number of delegates, under the idea that the body is too large to be effective.
—Bro. Joe Hopier's meeting at Paris continues with 12 additions. The Kentuckians say: As we listen to the "old, old story," so tenderly told by the devoted servant of the Master, as he leads with the impetuous, it is hard to realize how men can reject such pressing overtures of mercy.
—At a Mormon baptizing near Lewisburg, W. Va., one of the converts became very happy and grabbing the preacher around the neck, pulled him under the water with him. While he held him on the bottom of the river the worked-up convert shouted that he had drowned the world, the flesh and the devil.

—President W. P. Harvey, of the Western Recorder, offers a ticket from Louisville to Dallas, Texas, and return free to any one who wishes to go to the Baptist Convention, who will send either the names of 15 new subscribers for a year, with $30, or of 30 new subscribers for six months with $30. The price of the ticket is $25.05.
—The National Christian League for the promotion of social purity at New York has issued a statement defining its position toward Col. Breckinridge, in which it is recommended to "make his life stand out as an example and a warning, lest condemnation lead to corruption, and corruption sap the vitality of the church, injure society, imperil the home and destroy the nation."

—Rev. Dr. Weaver is preaching twice daily at the Baptist church, at 10:30 A. M. and 8 P. M. He is one of the front-rank preachers of his denomination, and his sermons are instructive and entertaining to both old and young. He has been pastor of the Chestnut street Baptist church, Louisville, for 30 long years, and is loved by everybody. He held a meeting here in 1868, at which time Rev. J. L. Burrus was pastor. The oldest members of the church here did not recognize him, however, when he arrived this week, 26 years having changed his beard from red to white as snow. There have been no additions since last report.

Bobbitt Versus Widows.

(To the Editor of Interior Journal.)
CRAN O'CHARD, APRIL 19.—I never intend to cast another anchor, for launch another harpoon into the matrimonial sea of widowhood. My wealthy old bachelor friend, George Holmes, says if he ever marries at all, he intends to have a sweet sixteen. It matters not how old he may be, 80 or 90 years. And my friend George is right, when we come with our age and wealth we demand youth and beauty in exchange. Wealth implies luxury, and age implies experience, youth implies gentleness and obedience and beauty implies loveliness and these qualities are but a fair exchange for what we offer. In the language of Cowper:
I shall never sigh again;
O' for a lodge in some rich widow's nest
Some vast continuity of cash,
Where the soul all untrammelled shall be at rest
With no thought of daily hash,
Where broad-cloth coats and silken hats abound
Which Fortune's lavish hand has thickly strewn around.
Last week I was invited by that elegant gentleman, Mr. Hoffman, to dine at the Springs with the belle of New York. She is elegant, and lovely, and her chief attraction is she is not a widow. Why, what is the matter with the widows? Nothing much, except one, on my second visit demanded the engagement ring and another on my third visit demanded my broken head for her broken heart.

FONTAINE FOX BOBBITT.

—Nelson Robinson, of Pineville, was arrested at Paintsville and taken home. He is charged with appropriating from $300 to $500 of the city's money.

HUSTONVILLE.

—Miss Julia Stagg was in town Tuesday shopping.
—The Christian Endeavor met at Mr. John S. Murphy's last Friday night and an elegant repast was served to the members at the proper hour.
—Mr. Doc Drye, the jolly young man, of Hustonville, is now hard at work in his new saloon. Doc worked hard for his cause and he succeeded.
—The horse show of last Saturday was a credit to Hustonville, some of the stock as Kentucky affairs were on exhibition. There was a good crowd in town, and splendid order all day; no drunken men were seen on the streets.
—Mr. George Frye, on old resident of Hustonville, and Miss Bell Portman, of Liberty, were united in wedlock at the bride's home at Liberty. They are both of great social standing in the county and have a host of friends to wish them success.

—Mr. Joe Baker, of Jellico, Tenn., has been in town for the last two days. The Hustonville girls cut quite a figure in Jellico society. W. M. Boone, of Lancaster, is in town with his patent harrow. It is a great thing. It is on exhibition at Mr. John Goode's farm.
—Mr. Uriah Dunn, who has been in the south trading in mules, during the winter, is home again. Mr. Jones Bangman, who is attending school at Lexington, returned to that place, from a visit to his home. Mrs. Donaldson, with her daughter, have left for their home, near Shelbyville.

—The prohibitionists have given up the cause. There is some talk of their erecting a saloon, and why should they not? If they are compelled to have it in their midst they should have some of the income of the money making stuff. Let her go boys, each man for himself.
—Miss Bettie Woodson, of near Hustonville, is very ill and is not expected to live but a few hours at this writing. Mr. E. L. Powell has gone to look after his business, and visit relations, near Columbia. Mr. G. D. McCarty, of Mt. Salem, has gone to Cincinnati to lay in his spring stock of goods.

—A debate was gotten up between the girls and boys of Christian College Tuesday afternoon, the subject being: Affirmed that Machinery has been Beneficial to Mankind. The affirmative was held by Misses Victoria Bishop, Pearl Rose, Lucile and Mattie Wyatt, Erma Morse and Ada Cunningham, the negative by Messrs J. W. North, Geo. Goode and Cloyd Johnson. It was decided in favor of the negative.

—The debating society known as the Beech Grove Society but now of Lyceum League of America, met last Friday night at Dodd's school house, their place of meeting. As always the house was full. The subject for debate was one of great attraction, being Woman's Suffrage. The subject was well handled by Messrs Dinwiddie and McClure for the affirmative, Messrs Donaldson, Goode and North the negative, but the judges thought they should have a right to vote and decided so. The society will meet again Friday, April 27. The subject for debate is: Resolved that Railroad Traffic on Sunday should be Prohibited. All are invited to come.

In an editorial demanding that Col. Breckinridge shall tempt fate and public patience no longer and withdraw from the race for Congress, the Louisville Post draws this over true picture: Col. Breckinridge himself is his own worst accuser, and his own counsel have by their most labored pleas made longer tolerance impossible. We may put aside every witness for the plaintiff, silence every argument of her counsel, place the most impartial judge on the bench in the seat of Judge Bradley, and the verdict of the people would be the same. For 10 years Col. Breckinridge has lived in violation of the law of God and man. He has been unfaithful to his most sacred vows. He has forgotten wife and children, he has imposed on friendship, he has wronged a confiding constituency, he has dishonored his State, and all that he might gratify his lusts, sacrifice to his passion, and indulge every selfish instinct of his nature. Living this life on the one side, on the other he has stood at the bar, in Congress, on the platform pleading for justice, for education, for morality and religion. Striking at the very foundation of the family in the dark, he has placed himself forward as the exponent of all the family virtues and as the devoted father and friend.

—Autocracy in the White House, treason in the Senate and absenteeism in the House have put upon the party of the people more burdens than it will or can bear, and there is lying down all along the line. Never before was a victorious army so betrayed by the egotism, venality and desertion of its leaders.—Louisville Times.

—It is currently reported that the Governor has asked the resignation of Adjutant-General Wickliffe to take effect May 1. When the resignation is secured Senator Gross will be again appointed Adjutant-General, holding the two offices.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEES.

For County Judge.....JAS. WALKER GIVENS
 " " Clerk.....G. B. COOPER
 " " Attorney.....J. B. PANTON
 " " Sheriff.....T. D. NEWLAND
 " " Assessor.....E. D. KENNEDY
 " " Jailor.....G. W. DEBORD

It is not often that a man is vindicated by his enemies, but Thomas B. Reed has lived to see the ruling which caused him to be dubbed the Czar and a tyrant of the most unrelenting kind, endorsed and adopted by the democrats. It is this in effect, though the rule which was passed by the House 212 to 47, differs somewhat from the ex-speaker's manner of counting a quorum, in that the autocratic power which Reed delegated to himself is not given to the presiding officer. It requires that the speaker shall name two members, one from each side of the pending question, if practicable, who shall take their places at the clerk's desk, to tell the names of at least enough members who are in the hall of the House during the roll call, who do not respond, when added to those responding, to make a quorum. In his speech at the close of the Congress over which he presided, Mr. Reed said that the future world prove his position the only tenable one, as it was a long stride in the direction of responsible government, and his words seem to have been prophetic. The democracy has had to learn of its enemies.

It would seem that a man who had studied the Bible sufficiently to be able to lecture on "Saul of Tarsus," ought to have read the 9th chapter of Genesis with more profit than did George R. Wendling, but it appears that he hadn't. Along about the 20th and 21st verses of the chapter referred to it is chronicled that Noah brewed the first wine of which we have any account, and he drank thereof till he was so blind drunk, he pulled off all his clothes and made a spectacle of himself. Ever since then men who have tarried long at the wine cup or looked even upon the wine while it is red, have made as big fools of themselves and Mr. Wendling is no exception. After lecturing at Lexington he went on a tear and while he did not do the Noah act, he behaved almost as unseemly, and came near being run in. The result was he missed his engagement next night at Richmond and made a highly cultivated audience indignant. Alas! that men should continue to put in their mouths that which steals away their senses.

The death of the wife of Defaulter Dick Tate has put his friends and other sentimentally disposed people in Frankfort to renewed effort to secure a pardon for him, but it Gov. Brown is the man we take him to be, he will let that monumental thief die where he has hid himself since robbing the people who so often honored him. There might have possibly been some excuse to let the fugitive come home to see the wife he had disgraced and wronged, die, but since she is gone there is no earthly reason for his return to Kentucky except to undergo penal servitude for his crime.

CALIFORNIA democrats take no stock in Senator Hill. Three thousand of them in mass meeting assembled at San Francisco, resolved that his utterances on the floor of the Senate in a recent speech are traitorous in their purposes, false in their assumptions, absurd in their logic and excite the indignation and derision of the Democracy of California, and his undemocratic course with reference to the Wilson bill is repudiated. The democracy all over the country repudiated Mr. Hill two years ago, and it has had numerous occasions since to prove the wisdom of the act.

The newspaper correspondents at Lexington must think that the world is greatly interested in Charles J. Bronston. On an average of once a week they send out the information that he will not run for Congress as if anybody cared whether he will or not. Mr. Bronston is a great man, doubtless, but too much of one thing, even if it be ever so good, finally induces nausea. Let his last declination stand for good and all.

THERE are quite a number of offices or collector of customs in small places like Paducah which cost a great deal more than they are worth. The total receipts of these useless offices last year were $5,000, and their expenditures $90,001. An economically administered government demands that these sinecures be abolished and the bill pending in Congress to that end ought to be adopted.

Mrs. BLACKWATER denies most emphatically that she rendered any pecuniary assistance to Miss Pollard in the prosecution of her suit, with which she had nothing to do save to testify as she felt it her duty to. Where the young woman got the money to hire high priced lawyers is still a mystery, which promises to be as unsolvable as the Emma Train. Who struck Wm. Patterson?

In his admirable speech in Louisville last week Gov. Knott had the courage to designate a spade by its proper name in speaking of the pension enormity. Last year it amounted to $159,357,000, which is more than $40,000,000 more than the cost of maintaining the German army during the same time. The expenditure will amount this year to $186,000,000 to $189,000,000. Fully $1,000,000,000 of this is paid to people no more entitled to it than the speaker, who said he made the statement deliberately that the ultimate object of the reckless appropriation was to influence votes. If the soldiers thought the pension appropriation was a bribe they would spurn it, but, nevertheless, it has that effect in thousands of instances. He denounced the expenditure, not because of the money it took from the treasury, but because it was one of the pestilential brood of consequences of a violation of Jeffersonian democracy. The expenditure degrades the dignity of American citizenship, demoralizes labor, and is sheer robbing, clad in the garb of statutory enactment. He favored honest pensions and pleaded for a pruning of the pension lists.

The Louisville leader, the new republican paper, is to make its appearance May 15. With the Commercial in the field, we can not see that the new venture will fill a long felt want. True, the Commercial claims to be independent, but it is only a claim, unsupported by anything that has yet appeared in its columns. It is republican first, last and all the time. The capital stock of the new paper is said to be $500,000 and that $200,000 has been paid in.

We are glad to observe that our young friend, John A. Baird, has been promoted to city editor of the Louisville Times. He is one of the most laborious and capable young men on the city press and will, we are sure, fill his new place with that conscientious fidelity that has characterized all his efforts. Mr. Sam McKee, Jr., who has held the position satisfactorily, will become dramatic critic for the Courier-Journal.

On our fourth page is a picture of Thomas Brackett Reed as he appeared after losing his hat and taking the largest one left that he could find. He has a very large head naturally, but the largest hat made in the country would look just as small on his head now, since his patent on counting a quorum has been adopted even by those who heaped contumely upon him, when he first applied it to practice.

It may be set down as sure as anything in this uncertain world of ours that there is not a ghost of a chance for the populist candidate for Congress in the 2d district, or Tom Pettit would not have declined the nomination. Tom Tit never gives up if there is an earthly show. The pope isn't in it in Kentucky or elsewhere any more, it is refreshing to record.

In its effort to print the news while it is fresh, the INTERIOR JOURNAL, sometime overleaps itself. For instance it announced a week ago that Editor A. J. Casey, of the Owensboro Inquirer, had married a wife, when the fact was that the interesting event did not occur till Wednesday.

JUDGE CARWELL BENNETT seems to have made his calling sure for a re-nomination for the appellate judgeship in the 1st district, and that means that his election is assured. All of his opponents have retired from the track, leaving him at present a walk-over.

The wife of Jeff Gatten, of Magoffin, choked her step son to death, while he lay upon a sick bed. She hated little fellow, but his loss is not her gain. She is in jail and will be hung if sentimentalism doesn't take the place of sense and justice.

THE Hon. Gus Richardson, of Meade, has at last got a job. It is an $1,800 clerkship in the collector's office at Louisville; not a very exalted one to be sure, but sufficient to gratify the present desires of this perennial office seeker.

Up to the hour of going to press we have had no information that Willie has paid Madeline that $15,000. He ought to walk up to the captain's office and settle. He seems to have had that worth of worth of fun.

COL. CRADDOCK has applied for and gotten an increase of pension. No body will object. The few survivors of the Revolutionary war are welcome to all they can get out of the government.

CHAUNCEY DREW says he was only in fun when he said in St. Louis that he was a candidate for the presidency. The statement is superfluous. The country took it as a joke.

—Henry Montgomery, a notorious negro, was hanged by a mob at Lewisburg, Tenn., Monday night, because he had made some threats to burn residences.

—G. J. Hardin, who used to travel with Barnum as one of the tallest men in the world, died at Strong City, Kansas, of consumption. He was 74 feet tall.

—W. H. Copeland shot Lawyer Harris in President Harrison's law office in Indianapolis. The men were brothers-in-law and the trouble was over a law suit.

—John C. Barkley, the trackman in Wall street, is dead. He bore the distinction of having handled more gold and silver bullion than any man that has ever lived.

—If the bill to divide Kentucky into two Federal court districts and create more offices, becomes a law, J. R. Sampson, of Middleboro, will be an applicant for the judgeship.

—Henry Bowling, once sentenced to death at Mt. Sterling for killing Lee Brown in 1892, receives only a ten-years' sentence on the second trial. The law's delay is the law breaker's hope.

—The wife of Wm. Reeder has sued Police Judge Jones and Marshal Bowman at Barbourville for $10,000 damages for killing her husband. Both men are under indictment for the murder.

—Without a particle of warning Morgan C. Colt dropped dead. His father, who invented the revolver which bears his name, lived to see many men drop dead in consequence of his ingenuity.

—Frank Phillips, one of the parties who figured in the Hatfield-McCoy feud, was shot and killed Monday night, together with William Bevins, a detective, by the Rickett boys, whom they were pursuing.

—The contract for completing the Middleboro water-works has been let to McFarlan, Conden & Rogers, of Knoxville, for about $10,000. Work will be commenced at once and pushed to an early completion.

—Senator Palmer has introduced in the Senate a bill repealing the State bank tax, but prohibiting the issuing of money by State banking institutions or by any other corporation or person except national banks.

—The strike of the American Railway Union employees of the Great Northern system is attaining alarming proportions. Every division save one is affected, and of 4,495 miles but 296 miles are in unmoleted operation.

—The convicts at Frankfort made 19,555 chairs in March, valued at $10,578, upon which there was a net profit of $4,815 65, which with the hire of other convicts gave the State a net income from their labor of $5,201 55.

—At the democratic judicial convention in Nashville a resolution condemning President Cleveland's silver views and his appointments of Gresham and MacVeigh was killed by referring it to committee and hastily adjourning.

—Another promising oil well has just been struck on Over Creek, in Wayne county, by the Kentucky Oil and Gas Company, which concern already has a number of producing wells in that section. This well made the second large one, and oil was found at 160 feet.

—Sheriff Collins, of Wayne county, Michigan, a number of deputies and a number of Poles were injured, some probably fatally, by a riot of striking laborers near Detroit. The strikers set upon the sheriff's men with shovels and the latter fired upon the Poles. A number of the strikers are under arrest.

—There will be no strike on the Queen and Crescent against the 10 per cent. reduction of wages, committees of the various railway labor organizations on that system, having agreed to the scale.

—There is a new turn in the affairs of the defunct Cumberland Valley Bank, Barbourville, and deposits, which heretofore have been supposed to be worth not over 20 cents on the dollar, are selling at 70 cents.

—There are 14 clerkships in the Louisville pension office. The pay is very small and the work is constant and laborious. Seven of these posts pay only $500 a year, four pay $800, one pays $700, one pays $800 and the chief clerkship is worth but $1,400.

—Miss Pollard's leading counsel, Mr. Wilson, received a beautiful token of American Beauty and La Femme roses from several prominent ladies as an appreciation of his efforts in the trial. Among these were Miss Mary Desha, sister-in-law of Col. Breckinridge.

—Gottlieb S. Kain and Stephen Greider of Philadelphia, are bent on committing suicide. They laid their heads on the trolley track and the car that came along knocked them off but failed to kill them. Next they laid their heads on the Lehigh Valley track but were stoned away by workmen.

—The pension business is the twin evil of protection. It is undermining the character of thousands of American voters and pointing the way to communism, to anarchy and finally to despotism. We need a democratic revival in this country, one which will carry the party and the people back to first principles.—Louisville Post.

—For the second time in 16 years the peach crop will be a failure on W. H. Clay's farm near Elizabethtown. He has 1,000 trees covering 20 acres and there is not a peach in the orchard. Nothing daunted, he will put in 1,000 trees next fall.

—Our horse page will bear the inspection of those interested in that class of literature. The depression in the trade has affected our advertising patronage in that line over four columns. We have less than six this year, against over nine last.

—E. Renaker & Co., shipped to Philadelphia Friday 14,000 dozen eggs and 7,000 pounds of poultry. W. D. Sutherland bought of Thos. H. Clay 4,500 bushels of wheat at 52 1/2 cts. on cars. It will be shipped to Atlanta, Ga.—Winchester Democrat.

—The New Harrodsburg Fair, besides its guaranteed purses to trotters and pacers, will open a stake for saddle mares and geldings of any age, to close June 1st, when it takes $5 to nominate and $2.50 to start, payable the evening before. Amount of stake guaranteed $150. Write for entry blanks to T. M. Cardwell, secretary, Harrodsburg, Ky.

"AND YOU'LL REMEMBER ME."

(By Warman.)

One evening as the sun went down
 Among the golden hills,
 And silent shadows soft and brown,
 Cried over vales and rivers,
 I watched the dusky bats a-wing
 Dip down the dusky bay;
 Harcening, heard a maiden sing,
 "And you'll remember me."

"When other lips and other hearts,
 Come drifting through the trees;
 In language whose excess imparts,
 Was borne upon the breeze,
 Ah! love is sweet and hope is strong,
 And life's a summer sea,
 A woman's soul is in her song,
 "And you'll remember me."

Still ripping from the floating mat,
 With joy akin to pain,
 There seemed a tear in every note.
 A sob in every strain;
 Soft as the twilight shadows creep
 Across the listless sea,
 The singer sang her love to sleep,
 With: "You'll remember me."

TREMENDOUS!

Is the most expressive word we can find in our vocabulary that will give you a conception of the extremely low prices that still prevail with us. A number of our customers have asked us how we can afford to sell goods so much lower than our competitors, whose facilities for buying and selling close are to all outward appearances as good as ours. That is where the mistake comes in; for having numerous places of business in this and other States, we necessarily buy in larger quantities and of course get closer prices. But what principally tells the tale is that we have

"OUT OF SCHOOL."

The clock strikes two in my parlor,
With its soft and silvery chime;
There are voices and merry laughter,
And I know that now is the time
When three little rosy cheeks
Will run up the old oak staircase
And in at my open door.

Their fond little arms are round me;
Soft lips to my own are pressed;
Two bright little laughing faces
With merriest smiles are dressed.
But one is so sad and tearful,
As it lies against my own.

And the poor little heart, and tender,
Thus utters its childish moan:
"Oh, why, mamma, do you send me
Where the hours are all so long?
I try so hard with the lessons,
But I always get them wrong.
At home, with you, I am happy,
But there I must keep the rule.
When I am a great grown lady,
I never will go to school."

Oh, how shall I tell my baby,
With her heart of golden hair,
With the soul through her bright eyes
Shining.

So free from sorrow and care,
That my lessons are only longer,
And sterner and stricter the rule—
That we who are great grown ladies,
We never are "out of school."

A LOVER'S QUARREL.

The Story of a Jealous Girl and Her Lesson.

"Don't touch me or speak to me," said Nina Wilbur, as her betrothed husband, Ashton Craig, came up the steps of the low veranda of the "Farmer's Best."

"Oh, I mean it. I am not one who does not know when she has been insulted," said Nina.

"Nina, you do not know anything yet," said Ashton. "When I have told you—"

"Told me?" said Nina. "Well, I scarcely need telling. You invite me to the races, and when you are almost there leave me alone here until they are over."

"I left you to save a life," said Ashton.

"The girl was not thrown out," said Nina. "It was well enough for you to stop the horses and carry her in when she pretended to faint, but to send me a note telling me to stop where I was until you came for me, and stay all this while—why, as I said, it is an offense beyond forgiveness."

"As I said, you know nothing about it," said young Craig.

"If the girl had been killed there were plenty to take care of her beside her escort, whom the people told the landlady was not hurt, though he was thrown out."

"Oh, I've been nearly wild with mortification, and that good old soul—ignorant, of course, but so sympathetic—how she has pitied me!"

"You don't seem the sort to be used so, miss," she said. "I'm going to give you her very words, plain as they were, and so impressive. 'You don't know men folks yet, my dear,' she said. 'When you are my age you will, to your cost. That girl that was run away with is one of the sort that come to the races in crowds. When they get their eyes on a well-dressed young man they don't take 'em off in a hurry. She came to quiet enough once she got things the way she liked 'em, and he's been with her on the grand stand all this time, while you've been cooling your heels here, my dear.' That's what she—an experienced old grandmother—told me."

"Blessed old lady," said Ashton, "and you accept her views?"

"Why, as she said, if I had been right you'd have sent me out to bring me over, instead of telling me to stay here," said Nina, "and she said things like that often happened, only usually the parties 'were all much of a muchness' of course I don't know exactly what she means by that," faltered Nina.

"Exactly?"

"Not exactly—but it is evident that a few hours' intercourse with an experienced old lady like that is a liberal education for a respectable girl."

"Well, you prefer this version to any I can offer," said Ashton, coolly.

"Oh, you cannot slip out of it like that," said Nina.

"I hope you have had some lunch," Ashton said, ignoring her remark.

"She made me take some salt clam soup and a miserable piece of pie," said Nina. "If I had had my nurse with me I should have put her up and gone home, but I was not prepared for this insulting conduct."

Ashton walked away and paid the bill, and soon the vehicle in which they were to return was ready. But all the way home he kept perfect silence, and made no attempt either to explain anything or seek forgiveness.

Nina was visiting in aunt, and at the door of this lady's residence he paused, assisted her to alight and drove away with a very polite bow, never once looking back, as she saw plainly.

By this time she, being a woman, was nearly mad to hear from his lips what had happened—to listen to some story which might give her a chance to forgive him.

Really, it seemed impossible, when she thought the matter quietly over, that Ashton could have played so low and shabby a trick.

The old woman had influenced her strangely. At best it was very wrong of him—very unkind—but if he had only confessed the truth and pleaded and offered excuses—at least she would have been able to play a dignified part.

Now she felt that she had neither spoken nor behaved as a lady should—no, not kindly, as one should even to a friend.

She should have listened to him before she burst out into that tirade, and she entered her aunt's house with such a face that that lady cried:

"Why, what's the matter—where is Mr. Craig—why didn't he come in? I've a lovely high tea ready. Why, Nina, I believe you've quarreled with him."

"Don't speak of Mr. Craig," said Nina, "he is the most contemptible creature—I wish I had never seen him."

And then she burst into tears and was forced to tell the story—her version of it, of course.

She meant it to be the true one, but in the case of a quarrel, people are apt to make the best story for themselves, in very self-defense.

"We were very near the race course," she said, "when a carriage dashed past us—the gentleman was thrown and the lady was in danger. Ashton made me alight and go into a little country hotel by the roadside—then dashed on, and somehow, I cannot tell how, stopped the horses. The girl was not thrown, and I saw Ashton take her in his arms and carry her up the steps of an elegant hotel not far away. Later he sent me a note, telling me not to come over on any account, but to stay where I was until he came for me. He came, after the races were over, and made neither explanation nor apology."

"Why, that seems impossible, Nina," said her aunt. "What did you say?"

"Well, I was not very amiable," said Nina. "But could you expect that?"

The aunt shook her head.

"He should have explained," she said. "Nina could not bring herself to tell her aunt what the old landlady had suggested, or that she had nettled and repented her words to Ashton. It all seemed so low and coarse, now that she thought it over.

"I suppose he forgot me," she said. "In that case," said her aunt, "never forgive him; I would not."

And Nina went to her room in tears, and during the wakeful night, resolved to return Ashton's rug on the morrow, which she did by express, with a scornful word or two written upon the most elegant note paper in her possession.

After this she told her aunt that she would go home at once; and that lady, who, though delighted to entertain a niece who was in a cheerful mood, had an aversion to tears and low spirits, agreed that it was perhaps the best thing she could do under the circumstances to go home to her dear mamma, who would give her the best advice possible.

Poor Nina! As her journey over, she walked up the garden path leading to the door of her suburban home, how heavy was her heart. She began to realize what the old minister and her grandfather meant by saying "all is vanity."

She had been so proud of Ashton and of her engagement to him, and she was ashamed to tell her friends that all was over, and then the heartbreak of it!

Now that there was no going back, she felt that she could forgive him almost anything. And just as she came to this there was a sudden rush of sisters down the path, a kissing and embracing and incoherent cries of: "Oh! she's ever so much better; there's not the least reason to be anxious. We know you'd come at once. But, oh! how pale you are. And don't you feel proud of Ashton?"

Nina simply stared at them.

"What has happened?" she cried.

"She doesn't know," cried the younger sister.

"Na made Ashton promise not to tell her until this morning," said the eldest.

"But what did he say to make you come?" said the third sister.

"Oh! you ought to be proud of him; but for him it is terrible to think how we might be grieving now," said the middle sister.

"You know Cousin Rodney came to ask me to go to the races with him," said the eldest sister.

"And we made her go," said the youngest.

"And he didn't understand the horses," said the middle sister. "It was a new team."

"We'll never speak to him again," said all three together.

"Oh, good heavens! Was that mother? Was Rodney driving her?" panted Nina.

"How noble; he never told—he kept his promise," said the eldest sister. "Yes, dear, and Rodney's head was cut open."

"Served him right," cried the others.

"And ran faint away, and the doctors thought her dead."

"They all began to cry.

"When Ashton brought her home we all shrieked," said the youngest. "But she is quite well—only we make her lie down, you know, and she'll be so glad we were not frightened."

"Ashton is the noblest creature," chorused the sisters, and Nina, turning as red as she had been pale before, burst into tears.

"And I am the meanest," she confessed. "I did not know whom he had rescued, and I quarreled with him for staying away all day, and sent him back his ring this morning."

"Oh," groaned the chorus, "I don't believe he will ever forgive you, and you do not deserve it."

But just then, looking up, whom did they see entering the gate but Ashton Craig. And the look he gave them convinced them that he was not in a very angry mood.

Indeed, when poor Nina turned her tear-filled eyes toward him and held out her trembling hands it was impossible for him not to melt outright, and the sisters knew that the best thing to be done was to leave the two together, which they did. And shortly after Nina and Ashton knelt beside the mother's couch, hand in hand, and on Nina's finger shone once more her engagement ring.

"Don't cry; I'm perfectly well, and only ashamed of having fainted from fright," the mother said.

But Nina could not have given a name to all the emotions that mingled in her bosom and sent such a shower of shining tears down her smooth cheeks. Only she knew that she was at once ashamed and comforted, and that for the first time since their engagement she fully realized how well she loved her betrothed husband and how glad she was that she was soon to be his wife.—Kansas City Times.

How Much Rain Will Fall?

The Weekly Courier-Journal has struck a popular note in its weather guessing contests. A wonderful amount of interest was taken in the offer of $1,000 for the closest guesses to the coldest day and temperature during February, at Louisville, and much valuable information was gathered by subscribers on the subject. This contest has just been decided, there being 28 lucky guessers. The Weekly Courier-Journal now makes another offer on the same line. For the closest guesses to the amount of rain that will fall at Louisville during the month of May, the Weekly Courier-Journal will give $1,000. This money will be divided into 19 presents—one of $500, two of $100 each, two of $50 each, four of $25 each, and 10 of $10 each. Each guess must be accompanied by $1, to pay for one year's subscription to the Weekly Courier-Journal, the best democratic paper published. The rain fall is scientifically measured, to the hundredth part of an inch. The heaviest rain-fall in May during the past 20 years was seven inches and forty-six hundredths of an inch. The lightest was one inch even. The measurements are made by the Government officials of the Weather Bureau at Louisville. Sample copies of the paper with full particulars of the contest, will be sent free to any address. Write at once, as under no circumstances will any guesses be received after April 30th. Address, Weekly Courier-Journal, Louisville, Ky.
